1. This report makes reference to the following documents:

D2: DE 14 79 365 A (KUNSTSTOFF MASCHINEN AG), 19 June 1969

2. INDEPENDENT CLAIM

The present application does not meet the requirements of PCT Article 33(1) because the subject matter of claim 1 does not involve an inventive step (PCT Article 33(3)).

2.1 Document D1 is considered to constitute the prior art closest to the subject matter of claim 1 and describes (see page 6, lines 8-28; figures 1, 15, 16A, 16B)) a closing device having all the technical features of the preamble of claim 1 (the device comprises a fastening element (12), a

Box No. V Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement distribution duct (13) and a closure element (20)).

2.2 The subject matter of claim 1 differs from that known device in that the closure element comprises a sealable part which, before it is sealed, leaves open the distribution opening and, after it is sealed, tightly seals the distribution opening.

2.3 The present invention can therefore be considered to address the problem of making it possible to use the closure device for filling purposes.

2.4 Document D2 describes (see page 6, lines 14-24; figures 5-7) a device having a closure element (102) with a sealable portion (105) which, before it is sealed, leaves open the distribution opening and, after it is sealed, tightly seals the distribution opening. Consequently, the solution proposed in the characterising part of claim 1 has already been used for the same purpose in an analogous closure device. Even if D2 teaches the production of a container and of a closure element in a single piece by blow-moulding, whereas D1 describes the production of a closure device by injection-moulding or moulding, the problem addressed and the solution are the same in D1 and D2 and therefore do not depend on the production technique by blow-moulding or by injection-moulding or moulding. Consequently, a person skilled in the art would combine the features described in documents D1 and D2 for solving the stated problem, without being inventive.

3. DEPENDENT CLAIMS

3.1 Claims 2, 3 and 9-13 do not contain any features which, in combination with the features of claim 1, meet the requirements of PCT Article 33(2) and 33(3) for inventive step; see documents D1 and D2, and the corresponding passages cited in the search report.

3.2 Document D2 describes a closure element with a sealable portion (see point 2 above). However, that sealable portion does not comprise a fixed element and a sealing cap to be fixed in a permanent manner to the fixed element. Moreover, document D3 shows (see figures 1, 2) a closure device having a fixed element (2, 5) and a cap (6). The cap (6), however, is not designed to be sealed in a permanent manner to the fixed element (2, 5), as described in claim 4.

Consequently, the combination of features in claim 4 is not found in the prior art, nor can it be obviously derived therefrom. The subject matter of claim 4 meets the novelty requirement, involves an inventive step and is industrially applicable.

3.3 Claims 5-8, which are dependent on claim 4, and claims 9-13, provided they are dependent on claim 4, thus also meet the novelty requirement, involve an inventive step and are industrially applicable.
